LOCAL MATTERS.

The Campaign in this year is one of especial importance and interest to the voters of the country. Everyone will desire to keep himself informed concerning the progress of the campaign, and for reliable news no better medium can be found than the Whig and Courier.

The Bangor Art and Training Company has an excellent exhibit at the Maine State Fair at Lewiston. It cannot fail to attract much admiring attention as the company does fine work. The exhibit at the Eastern Maine State Fair was a splendid one.

The Bangor Business College opens today. There will be a large attendance. Miss Talbot M. Noyes, of East Bradford, sends us a small box of wild, ripe strawberries picked September 2nd.

State Steamboat Inspector Horace Atwood, of Humpden, went to Auburn yesterday to join Inspector Staples on an inspection trip.

Any small articles to sell for the benefit of the colored children of Troy will be gratefully received by Mrs. Planted before September 15th.

Hon. M. J. Murray, of Boston, has been obliged to cancel his engagement to speak at Passadumuck on September 4th and 5th.

Mr. F. A. Robinson, of James A. Robinson and Son, goes to Bar Harbor today on business regarding their branch store there, at which a large business is done.

A very large number of people left yesterday on the steamer City of Bangor, many being tourists. The Boston steamers are a very popular means of travel.

The private car of the president of the Rio Grande and Western Railroad Company passed through the city yesterday afternoon on its way west with a party on board who have been to Bar Harbor.

Norse & Company's mills are being reworked by the Bangor Electrical Construction & Supply Company after the most improved method in order that the danger from fire may be of the least possible kind.

A pen sketch of the campment of the National Guards, S. M., in 1893, is on exhibition in the window of James A. Robinson & Son. It was won by the Hamilton Rifles in the company match at the last fair.

The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association are to have a special meeting Wednesday afternoon to meet with Miss Allen of Arlington, Mass., on a matter of importance to them.

Eighty years ago Saturday the English had possession of Castine and occupied the town. The following day the Maine Central and Bangor Railroad was opened, and the town was again in the hands of the Maine Central.

ROUSING RALLY.

The Board of Registration, will begin its sessions this morning at 9 o'clock for the September election, which occurs next Monday.

During the meeting at City Hall last evening a man named Rich, standing in the rear, persisted in making himself a nuisance and was removed by Chief of Police Gilman and locked up.

The Bangor Art and Training Company has an excellent exhibit at the Maine State Fair at Lewiston. It cannot fail to attract much admiring attention as the company does fine work. The exhibit at the Eastern Maine State Fair was a splendid one.

THE FITZGERALD INQUEST. The Maine Central Company and the Employees' Board met yesterday afternoon according to the adjournment at the Municipal Court room at 12 o'clock and then proceeded to the Maine Central depot and viewed the scene of the accident which occurred Saturday morning.

They then returned to the court-room and heard testimony. B. R. Hatch, humpden, testified as to his conversation with Fitzgerald, who stepped upon the track to count the cars of the western train. He stepped in front of the shifter locomotive, which was backing up from the east, just as it came along and was run over.

Mrs. James A. Thibault testified that she saw Fitzgerald standing on the track and heard shouts in warning to him of the approach of the locomotive. She saw the locomotive almost upon him and turned her head away.

Miss Hogan, Fitzgerald's operator, testified that she saw him on the track, heard the shouts of warning and saw the locomotive strike him. Fred A. Bennett and Daniel Moriarty, of Boston, testified that they were at the depot waiting to take the train for Old Town. They saw Fitzgerald step in front of the locomotive and struck him on the hip, knocked him down and dragged him. The tender wheels and one of the driving wheels passed over him.

Nicholas J. Driscoll, who had charge of the shifting engine, testified that he knew of the affair. He heard the shouts and looking out saw a man under the wheels. He stopped the engine as quickly as possible.

Miss McBurn, car knocker, testified that she saw Fitzgerald and saw a man under the engine. He pulled the man out after one driving wheel passed over him.

Martin H. Wells, brakeman at the Maine Central yard, testified that he heard Fitzgerald and Hatch talking about the number of cars. Fitzgerald stepped upon the track and when the engine came one foot from him he (the witness) seized Fitzgerald by the coat collar and tried to pull him from the track, but could not. He had a narrow escape himself.

The jury after considering the evidence brought in a verdict, that John Fitzgerald had come to his death at the Maine Central depot, Bangor, September 1st, 1894, by his own carelessness and was not at fault.

HYMENEAL. Rowe-Wentworth. A pleasant marriage ceremony was performed yesterday forenoon at half past ten at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wentworth, on Blackstone street, the contracting parties being Mr. Edwin C. Rowe, of the carriers' department, and Miss Ruth Wentworth, the ceremony being officiated by Rev. Mr. Kingsley, of the First Baptist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the families. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the display of presents in an adjoining room was large and rich, among them being a handsome one from Mr. Rowe's associates in the post-office.

The bridal party left on the Flying Lark for a bridal tour which will include a visit to Mount Kisco, Greenfield, Lake Umbagog, and other places. Mr. Rowe is well known as one of Bangor's able and energetic young men and his bride is a young lady of worth and highly esteemed by her many friends.

Mr. Herbert W. Rowe was best man and Miss Blanche S. Smith, bridesmaid. A large party of friends bade them farewell at the Maine Central station, and the conventional shower of rice was not wanting, all wishing them well on their safe return and a happy wedded life.

AMUSEMENTS. At The Normandie. The Lillian Tucker company began its second week at The Normandie by a presentation of "The Lawyer Detective" last night before a good sized audience. To-night the play will be "The Girl in the Red Dress" and "The Girl in the Red Dress."

There is good reason to believe that James O'Neill has an agreeable surprise in store for the public of this city during his coming engagement at the Opera House next Thursday and Friday nights. This talented actor promises that he will open with "Virginius" in which he has won such well merited laurels. Much is expected of O'Neill in this character. He possesses all the physical and intellectual qualities necessary to convey the right impression of the role. Anybody who is a lover of art, should not miss the opportunity of seeing Mr. O'Neill as the hero, Romeo. The second night he is here, he will put on the old companion "Monsieur Croquet," the great version of which he has played so successfully throughout the whole land over 3,000 times in the course of ten years, without ever missing a single performance. (This is a record that is only equaled by Joe Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle.") It is almost needless to add that company, costumes and scenery are in every particular worthy of the two great plays and the famous star, it is said.

Entertained at the Melita Club. As the close of the Big Republican rally last evening ex-Speaker Reed was escorted to the rooms of the Melita Club in Kensington block, the club members having invited a number of Bangor gentlemen not members of the club to meet the distinguished guest. Beside the members of the club there were present Messrs. Chief Justice Foster, Hon. John W. Palmer, F. A. Wilson, Esq., Charles Hamlin, Hon. Lyman S. Folger, and F. W. Crane, Esq. Delicious refreshments were served and an interesting conversation was enjoyed for an hour or more, all parting with mutual expressions of good will and esteem.

First Maine Heavy Artillery. The following notice has been issued to the veterans of the First Maine Heavy Artillery: The dedication of the monument at Petersburg, Va., by the First Maine Heavy Artillery will take place Friday, September 15th, at 10 o'clock. City Hall Packed to the Very Doors.

Every Seat Occupied as Well as Every Inch of Standing Room.

Mastery Address Delivered by Ex-Speaker Reed.

A Discussion of the Present Political Situation.

That Was Very Clear, Convincing and Unanswerable.

Great Enthusiasm Prevailed Throughout the Evening.

The opening Republican campaign meeting of the year was held in City Hall last evening and long before the hour announced for the meeting an immense crowd had taken possession of nearly the entire seating capacity of Bangor's grand auditorium.

After a session at the front of the hall by the Bangor Band the band came upon the platform and played another selection. Just before eight o'clock the speaker of the evening, Hon. Thomas B. Reed, accompanied by Charles S. Pearl, Esq., chairman of the Republican city committee, General Charles Hamlin, Chief Justice John A. Peters and other prominent citizens, came upon the stage, the band playing a lively selection and the audience greeting the arrival of the speaker with loud applause.

At this time extra seats had been brought in and every foot of standing room in the main floor and galleries was taken.

The number present was estimated to be from twenty-five hundred to three thousand, the latter number being probably nearest to correct, and the words of our city fathers providing such a commodious, convenient and beautiful hall in which to assemble was appreciated and commented upon by all.

No speaker who ever came into the State was ever met by a finer assemblage than greeted the noted ex-Speaker as he came upon the platform. The assemblage was promptly called to order by Chairman Pearl of the Republican city committee, who in a few well chosen words introduced General Charles Hamlin as chairman of the meeting.

General Hamlin was received with applause as he took the chair. He said that the duty assigned him was not only a pleasure but an honor. He congratulated those assembled upon having such a beautiful and commodious hall due to the energy and ability of their honored Mayor, backed by their own action.

He referred to the fact, noted in the local columns of this morning's paper, that it was the 80th anniversary of the occupation of Bangor by the British, when they held high carnival on the 3rd of September, 1814, in what was formerly our old City Hall.

"I was not here at that time," said he, "but we have been taken possession of once or twice since by Great Britain, and it has been seen again under the action of the present administration, and you have the leader of invaders here to-night to tell you how it has been done."

He would not take up the time of the meeting but he would introduce to the audience the speaker of the evening, that honored statesman, destined to a higher prominence in the nation, Hon. Thomas B. Reed.

As Mr. Reed came forward he was received with a storm of cheers and after quiet had been restored spoke in part as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen: I am glad to see so large and brilliant an audience here to-night. I have been in many campaigns. I appear here to-night as the friend of the Democratic party. I do so because they seem to have no other friend. I cannot say the cruel and unkind things that have been said of them by their own friends. No great action, and not even the smallest action, takes place without a cause. What is the cause of the position of the country to-day?

This is a great country. We do not say as much as we used to years ago. With a population of seventy millions of people, territory of 3,000 miles from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and 2,000 miles from Canada to the Gulf, we have an immense country. It requires two parties and only two to run this great country. A third party is like the third wheel of a coach. First a party must know what it wants—what it is after. If it does not it is like a baby crying to the night. The Democratic party never knew what it wanted from Maine to Texas, from Oregon to Florida.

They could not tell anything that would please all of them or be safe in their position with any of them. A year and a half has been enough to convince them of this. The only thing that they were united in on the last election was that they wanted us out and themselves in.

They occupied a negative position, but this is impossible to continue. They must move on or go to sleep, and they have done the latter. They must go on and go on, they must act together or quit. Our Democratic friends have not to do this and they realize it. They were opposed to the Republican party because they were here to read. Others, always Democrats, found for party because they never knew anything else. When they considered the serious purpose of the government they were unable to agree.

In addition to not agreeing they have turned about and abused their opponent, who has also turned about and gone home sore and wounded. They have succeeded in getting a tariff bill, but they are more dissatisfied with it than we are. They think, many of them, that they have not gone far enough. A tariff bill has to be very divergent in its schedule, in dealing with interests as divergent as those from Maine to California. It must be adapted to all the people, and the discussions upon it should be as open as discussions in any town meeting. It should have the light thrown upon it which should emanate from the minds of 70,000,000 people.
